

Ministry Partnering Director Position Description

The Organization and Mission

Mars Hill Productions is a non-profit media ministry dedicated to leveraging media to its highest potential for the purpose of helping fulfill the Great Commission of Christ to reach “every tongue, tribe and nation” with the Gospel. For over 40 years, Mars Hill has created award-winning films and videos that have been used around the world in a wide variety of venues to communicate the love and truth of Christ with millions of people.

In the past 15 years, Mars Hill has redirected its production capabilities to advance a global strategic partnering model for the purpose of translating, adapting and disseminating The HOPE, an 80-minute dramatic motion picture presentation of God’s redemptive story from creation through Christ. The HOPE is the Gospel in metanarrative form; the “scarlet thread” of the Bible. With over 70 translations and adaptations in distribution and over 30 in the pipeline, The HOPE is being used in settings ranging from remote jungle villages to college campuses to satellite television. God is using The HOPE to reach unreached people groups around the world ... but so many are still unreached!

To better understand the value of The HOPE and how it is being used, please view our 3.5 minute video at www.HelpReachThem.com.

Mars Hill’s emphasis on strategic partnering to maximize the adaptability of The HOPE is well illustrated in the Tibetan version of The HOPE. Our three lead partners in this project - a missionary, an ethnomusicologist, and a filmmaker - believed that a greater degree of contextualization was needed, and could be accomplished by wrapping The HOPE inside a traditional Tibetan storyline. To achieve their goal, these partners created new film footage depicting a storyteller who, in typical Buddhist tradition, travels around sharing his story and worldview with villagers. Ultimately, he finds an elder who has a book that tells the story of the world. To illustrate the story in this book (the Bible), our teacher uses a traditional form of Tibetan artwork called a Thangka. Our partners created Thangkas to parallel and set up the 36 Biblical events portrayed in The HOPE. The use of the traditional artwork, an original Tibetan soundtrack, and native dances has resulted in a powerful, culturally relevant media tool used by many to share the Gospel in Tibet and surrounding regions. (For more on The Tibetan HOPE, view pages 12-13 in our Invitation to Partner flipbook at <http://invitation.thehopeproject.com>.)

This case study demonstrates our commitment to achieve cultural relevance in presenting the essential metanarrative Gospel story of the Bible. It also exemplifies our core competencies to develop partnerships on the ground, and to engage in and support translation, production, and dissemination.

As we continue to grow our efforts, The HOPE is increasingly being recognized as a valuable asset to grassroots practitioners around the globe, and more and more partners are seeking us out for translations. Our partnering model allows us to leverage our core capabilities through those of others, helping them to increase their effectiveness, while remaining lean within our organization. With this model, every position in Mars Hill Productions, including the one described herein, is vital to our team and the success of our mission.

The Opportunity

Since our inception, Mars Hill has sought to participate in the Great Commission, and to do so using innovative practices in the use of media. The HOPE led us into a model that allows us to reimagine what that looks like each time we partner with a new ministry or engage a new cultural tradition. Now that our core tool and processes have been defined, we are asking the strategic question, “How can Mars Hill scale production and raise The HOPE flag while remaining entrepreneurial and responsive to God’s leading, retain our core DNA, and use an internal staffing model that focuses on high leverage not size?”

The Ministry Partnering Director will serve a vital role in helping us better leverage our partnerships. As we look to our future, we hope to increase our engagement with supporters and further develop ministry partnerships to expand our reach. This work requires a focus on increasing both our current and long-range impact. It also requires cultivating high touch relationships, strategic planning, and execution. The Ministry Partnering Director will play a pivotal role in allowing our internal team to remain lean, while expanding the reach of our work globally. Our goal is to significantly scale up our work in resourcing ministries with the vital tools to reach people in unreached corners of the globe, and we can only do so by expanding our partnerships.

The Ideal Candidate

The Ministry Partnering Director will have significant experience in building ministry partnerships and a strong grasp of the mission of Mars Hill, as well as the vision for The HOPE’s ongoing impact. Most important, the Ministry Partnering Director will have a passion for the Great Commission and seeing the Gospel go forth to every tongue, tribe, and nation, particularly those that are currently unreached.

The Ministry Partnering Director will maximize the worldwide ministry potential and dissemination of The HOPE by building and nurturing strategic ministry partnerships and alliances. The HOPE is not primarily a product, but rather a core resource; a tool designed to be adapted so that it might help fulfill mission strategies worldwide. As such, the true viability and potential of The HOPE is best understood in terms of ministry partnerships.

The ideal candidate is transparent and accountable to other team members, as well as the board and leadership of Mars Hill. He or she is a strategic thinker who can work closely with the President of Mars Hill to develop and implement plans to sustain and build ministry partnerships and fulfill the mission of Mars Hill.
